readers? This is emphatically a State enterprise. There is nothing local about it. It is intended to benefit Maine. It will first reach the ocean at Portland, but it will connect with roads which extend through the State. Besides, Portland is a part of Maine, and whatever builds up Portland, builds up the State. If by the road we can introduce a traffic to Maine (no matter to what part of it,) what good citizen will not rejoice at the result? It is a poor, petty feeling which leads one to oppose a public improvement, lest some one else should derive a little more benefit from it than himself. For one own part, there is no locality in Maine whose prosperity and progress we do not look upon with interest as part and parcel of the general prosperity of the State, and we trust that a similar disposition actuates all our people. The Atlantic Road will be finished at an early period, and the whole State will have reason to rejoice in its completion. What Portland will gain by it no one can doubt; that she has fairly earned. She has tasked all her energies in the great work, and richly deserves to reap some valuable fruit from it. She cannot be benefitted, however, as we have before said, without benefit to the State.

Among the most prominent of our railroad duties, then, in Maine are the completion of the Atlantic & St. L. Road, and the extension of the Western line of road to Bangor. There are other valuable enterprises in progress, but of less magnitude than these. We hope to see them all completed, wherever they can be made useful or profitable. But we invite the people to look carefully about them before they embark a present in any new railroad undertaking in order to see whether we have not as much railroad work on hand as we can just now well attend to, and whether any thing now about to be proposed with stronger claims upon us than those which are already chartered and in progress. Especially let us not engage in enterprises which can never pay, or certain of rivalry, upon roads which are destined to prey upon each other, and thus injure all parties connected with them. We have no money to throw away in Maine—even upon railroads—and what we have it becomes us to use with discretion, and to apply where it is most needed.

Whig and Courier.

SATURDAY, JUNE 14, 1851.

Mr. Webster and the Presidency.

Papers have been started in Springfield, Boston and other places in Massachusetts expressive of a desire for the nomination of Hon Daniel Webster for the Presidency, and intended to get an expression of the people of Massachusetts regard ng the great statesman and orator.

The following is the copy of one of these papers which has been numerously signed in Boston.—

"We nominate Daniel Webster for President of the United States—

Because he is a true lover of liberty, a faithful friend to his country and its institutions, and the defender of the Constitution under which we live.

Because his patriotism is as broad as the Union, and he will never permit the Constitution to be violated to favor one portion of the Country for the benefit of another.

Because by his calm wisdom, and far seeing intelligence, and high courage he has done much to save our country from foreign war and intestine division, and to guide it in the path of honor, prosperity and happiness.

Because under his administration the Constitution will be upheld, the laws enforced, the Union preserved, and the whole country be made prosperous and finally,—

Because the high honor is due to his long, and faithful service, to his matchless talents, his stern integrity, and his exalted patriotism.

This is one mode of making a State demonstration in behalf of Mr. Webster, and the more necessary, perhaps, from the great efforts which have been made to disparage him in Massachusetts. Such a demonstration fully carried out through the State will serve to place him in a fair position before the country, in a National Convention, so far as regards his own State.

We take it that, unless some weighty and all sufficient cause shall yet appear against a Whig National Convention, that the merits of every whig candidate for the Presidency is to be submitted to a Whig National Convention, and whoever is there nominated is to be warmly and enthusiastically supported by the whig party and the whig press throughout the country. This seems to us to be the fair and right thing in the right way.

The Heater Promenade.

It will not do to give up this excellent enterprise. It seems to be a favorable moment for making one of the best public improvements which our city has ever attempted. We learn that private subscriptions to the amount of eight or ten thousand dollars can be obtained to secure to the city a public promenade of great beauty, in the very heart of the city, and where it will be of daily benefit to the citizens for all coming time. In addition to the sum which can be obtained on private subscription towards the purchase of the land, most of the preparation of the land and embellishments would be effected by individuals without charge to the city. Under these circumstances ought not the city authorities to exert themselves to the utmost to secure to the city so eligible and desirable a promenade as this heater lot would furnish? We can see it now in our mind's eye as already completed, and the thought gives us great pleasure. There is among our citizens a strong feeling in favor of the enterprise, and we trust that no stone will be left unturned by the city authorities or the citizens to make sure now on comparatively easy terms, of a grand public ornament, and a comfort to all our citizens, and to strangers visiting here.

When we alluded to this subject several days since, we had no idea that so large a sum could be obtained from private subscription, but that sum is now so large that we feel anxious that the improvement should be made, as we feel confident that if the present golden opportunity is permitted to pass, every one will be sad by regret it.

☞ The Baltimore Clipper says—We have received a private letter from New Orleans which states, that the expedition against Cuba has not been abandoned, but will certainly take place, notwithstanding the efforts of the American Government to prevent it. Great numbers of young men have pledged themselves to the enterprise, and are prepared to embark at the first favorable moment, with great confidence of success.

☞ The Boston and Maine Railroad have declared a semi-annual dividend of 3½ per cent.

☞ The Mayor of Augusta has published a card granting his approval of the request of many citizens of that place for a suspension of sixty days in enforcing the provisions of the liquor law in order that dealers may make arrangements for getting rid of their stock. The Mayor of Portland has given no ice to similar effect. The Mayor of this city will probably do the same. To jump at once upon the large dealers in liquor would ruin them. Give a fair and reasonable time to those who need it, and from that hour the public sentiment demands that the law should be enforced until liquor selling is abolished in Maine. Nothing short of this will satisfy the public demand and no one need expect himself possessed of sufficient skill to dodge the law.

☞ Mr Riddle in his last letter, published in the Washington Intelligencer, says that in agricultural implements, the chief display of the Great Exhibition lays between the United States and Great Britain. Full a tenth of all the space within the walls of the immense building, is occupied by the latter country in agricultural and horticultural implement show. Mr Riddle says, however, that number has nothing to do with excellence, and he believes that in what has been sent from the United States of agricultural and horticultural implements, we are in ingenuity, in the saving of labor, in the adoption of valuable principles, in the application of science, and in mechanical progress, not only what behind our competitor, another country.

☞ John German Assistant Marshal, who was engaged in taking the census of New Mexico, discovered in the town of Chimallo, in Rio Arriba County, a substance resembling soap. It makes a lather like soap, and has the property of removing grease spots or stains out of any kind of cloth. When put in water it immediately slacks like lime. At the place where the discovery was first made, it is even with the surface, and about fifteen yards square. It is rotten on the top to about the depth of three feet, but opening deeper and wider at a greater depth. It can be taken out in large lumps of ten or fifteen pounds weight. It is as white as snow, and seems to exist in large quantities. Specimens have been forwarded to the Census Office at Washington.

Terrible Storm.

The Mad River Valley (Ohio) Gazette records the particulars of a great hail storm, which swept over that region a few days since. Stones fell to the size of the common door knob, some spheroidals, others had the appearance of jagged ice. Lambs and poultry were killed wherever exposed. The cattle ran frantic and bellowing their hides being severely lacerated by the hail stones. One hail stone which was found weighed four ounces and a half.

☞ The Middletown, Conn, Sentinel states that there has recently been discovered in the Portland Stone Quarry, near that town, the imprint of a Kangaroo, so beautifully distinct that no one can mistake it. The imprint is about four feet in length, with a tail of 21 inches large at the base and tapering towards the end. This is an interesting discovery to Geologists showing that the kangaroo once inhabited that country.

☞ A question has arisen in some minds as to the effect of the present liquor law upon the licenses granted last June. It seems to us perfectly clear that the effect of the present law supersedes all the licenses under the late law and that new licenses should be granted under the present law, according to its provisions.

☞ It is stated on the authority of the Paris Minister of the Canadian Parliament, that the provincial authorities have the right to make the St Lawrence river free to the vessels of all nations without reference to the Imperial Government. At Toronto the Governor introduced a bill to abolish the right of primogeniture in the succession of real estate.

☞ The Augusta Age says that in that place recently, three young crows were taken from a nest, two of which were white and one was black. The bills and legs of the former are white, and the eyes are blue.

☞ The Stockton Times states that since the repeal of the foreign mining tax three thousand Mexicans have returned to California, and are at work in the Mines.

☞ A large meeting of persons (Democrats) from six counties in Ohio, lately nominated General Wm. O. Butler of Kentucky, for the Presidency.

☞ The Newburyport Union, the Augusta Age and some other loco papers express their preference for Gen Houston as the candidate of their party for the Presidency.

☞ We learn that the logs from the Mattawamkeag river were yesterday coming into the Penobscot in good shape.

Cost of Liquor.

To the Editor of the Whig and Courier

At the present time, the following facts may be of interest to tax payers.

Since Monday last there have been committed to the Watch House in this city for drunkenness, and offences occasioned by drunkenness eighteen persons, nine of them at an expense to the county of $54 66, for mere costs of prosecution. The expenses of the remainder I have not learned.

I give the items that the public and those who have the benefit that has accrued from this branch of the liquor traffic may have something upon which to cogitate.

Jane Wentworth, $5,68; Wm Murphy 4,81; Martin Johnson & ale, 9,37; John Bulger, 4,20; Wm. Lovejoy, 4,92; O. C. Reynolds, 4,91; Austin Marshal, 8,25; Peter McCavoy, 5,60; Wm Dyda, 7,09.

Of the others imprisoned three were women—one of them a wife with her husband.

Allowing $54,66 to be the weekly average of expenses to the county for watchhouse offences of this description, you have the pretty sum of $2841,80 per year to be taxed for, to say nothing of the jail, house of correction and poor house expenses to be added.

Who says the new liquor law ought not to be enforced? G.

The Republican Simplicity of the President.

The impression of the simple ceremonial of American political life upon the eye of an intelligent European, is conveyed in the following passage descriptive of the recent visit of the President and Cabinet to New York, to attend the Erie Railroad celebration. The article is translated from a French paper, Courrier des Etats Unis, published in New York, for the New York Courier and Enquirer.—

The scene would assuredly not have satisfied the men who cherish the memory of great monarchical or imperial ceremonies. The platform had nothing to orna ment it but one table on which were some tumblers and a pitcher of water, and another where several reporters took notes; and with I some very ordinary chairs and benches of a Spartan simplicity.—There was no fuyo ol for the President no purple, no sceptre, no ministers. The group which pressed around the President presented no brilliant uniforms. There was no distinction among the different persons who composed it, and the humblest citizen found his place there as well as the first magistrate of the city. A complete laisser-aller, a liberty without restraint, without rules, without formalities without a shadow of etiquette prevailed about the Chief Magistrate of the nation, and the meeting up of persons was so complete—without the least disorder however, without the least unseemly crowding—that at the left of the President, for example, there was a man who swung his hat before him, and at every swing cried "Hurrah!"—and on the right, a reporter standing upright, engaged in taking down, with much apparent activity, every word which came from the mouths of the speakers.

In short, it was a ceremony without the slightest ceremonial, and yet for all this, every thing passed off non the less admirably. The three men who figured in the first rank have elsewhere made their peculiar mark, for Mr Fillmore, Mr Webster, and Mr Crittenden form the three most striking types to be signalized in the American pantheon. The first appears to be one of those honest and loyal natures whose simplicity is relieved by some attentiveness to personal appearance or rather by certain habits rendered in large towns. Though his hair is perceptibly grey, the air of youth and health which his countenance retains seems to indicate that his hears without fatigue the burden of power which has proved so fatal to more than one of his predecessors. Mr Fillmore possesses the intelligent and progressive bonjour of the term bonjourisme has meaning in a democratic country.

At the end, of the smoking figure of the President adjoined the dark and negligent Daniel Webster that powerful head whose front so broadly expands itself, that eye so deeply sunken, and betraying so much energy that single bearing in each of its features the mark of labor, of care, and perhaps of passion, arrests the attention at the first glance. One feels that here is one of those extraordinary individualities that do merit by the superiority of intellect. Those individualities may exist everywhere but, in you cases of the striking points of Mr Webster, you say that such a man belongs to a country where civil action is singularly invoked, and which has the experience of the oldest societies. With a little rigor you find a sort of parti pris in the negligence of his dress, but you do not think of concerning yourself with such trifling details. You only say that Mr Webster lives in a country where the form and color of the coat in no way affect the reality of the man.

This point stands out more boldly yet in Mr Crittenden. His frock-coat with epaulettes not reproachfully adjusted, and pockets gaping open to receive papers the handkerchief with which he wipes his brow, the tie of his cravat—in a word, the whole of his accoutrement denotes him a man of the West, and neither his physiognomy nor his language contradicts this indication. An eye quick, piercing, inquisitive, showing at once a rare discernment and an elevated spirit, and mouth firmly set, which readily opens for irony, rebuke or sarcasm, which, with out these merits would have been ordinary enough. In looking at Mr Crittenden one is tempted to exclaim "Here is a keen blade," and the epithet so often employed in America and so expressive, smart, seems to have been intended to paint him. The presence of these men, so different, and yet so united with the same political faith, their high position compared with the unceremoniousness of their attire, and the familiarity with which they were approached—their perfect ease in the presence of their fellow-citizens—their bearing and simple manners—all powerfully reminded us of the excellence of the democratic system, and we were struck with the spectacle as if it were entirely new to us. Again, hearing their addresses, or rather their unpretending talk with the crowd, and considering at the same time the great work whose completion they were going to celebrate, we said that the future belongs of right to those who no know how to unite the action to the word.

INTOLERABLE OPPRESSION.—A number of girls working in the factories at Lowell were induced under promises of high wages and excellent treatment to go Columbus, Georgia to work in a cotton mill. They have written home complaining with more than feminine volubility of the numberless disappointments and oppressions to which they have been subjected. Their wages are not so high their fare is not so good as they had been led to expect, and the pride of board is much higher. The boarding house is like a barn, the mill is dirty, the Southern girls chew snuff, and last and worst, there is not a looking glass in the whole factory! What Yankee girl would stand all these wrongs and not have even the consolation of looking upon her own pretty face in the mirror? A rebellion was the consequence, and it soon led to an improvement in the condition of things and the girls agreed to stay till October. If the gallant Georgians have half as much sense as we give them credit for, they will offer their fair Yankees better inducements than factory wages to remain in their Southern houses.—Providence Journal

[From the N Y Evening Mirror.]

Force of Habit.

There is beyond all question, a strong prejudice entertained by many persons against every thing new—they are so wedded to old notions and old ideas, that they will not permit themselves to examine new inventions, to ascertain whether they possess any merit or not. It is by no means strange that it should be so, nor will the fact excite surprise, if we remember the immense number of humbugs that are continually thrust before the public, impudently trumpeted forth for their superior excellence and proving in the end but base impositions.

It is a good maxim, nevertheless, to try all things and hold fast to that which is good, for everything must have been new at some time although the wise king asserted that "there is nothing new under the sun." The great difference between the savages and the cultivated man, is that the former rejected nearly everything new, while the latter tried all things. There would be no progress if this principle was not acted upon. What would have been our condition now, had we not been strong, for the past fifty years even, every new effort of human genius? Where would have been our canals, or rail roads, or telegraphs, and thousands of other discoveries that have marked the present age?

We were led into these reflections by meeting one of that kind of persons, who is quite satisfied to leave the world as he found it, and is entirely opposed to what, he terms new-fangled ideas. He bemoaned of a great misfortune he had sustained in the destruction by fire of his dwelling; a spark from the chimney fell upon the roof, and the shingles being dry, the place was speedily consumed. We suggested the propriety of trying some other kind of roof, but he said he was quite satisfied with shingles, he had always used them and always meant to.

We assured him that he could still make these fire-proof, by procuring some "PATENT FIRE PROOF PAINT" at a less expense too, than ordinary paint, and which, in a few months would render the roof not only proof against fire, but impervious to the weather also.

"Ah! but that is a new thing" said he "and I never buy new things. Neighbor Simpson has tried it, and if his roof does well for a few years, why perhaps I may give it a trial."—We undertook to argue this matter with him, showing how much better it was to be prepared for contingencies, than to regret after they had occurred, your want of precaution. We showed how by his shingly roofing merely, men were really preparing a bonfire for a future day—splitting these pieces of pine, the very material used for kindling fires, and nailing them upon the tops of their dwellings, where, in a few months a kind of hot gathers and in dry weather it becomes a perfect tinder box ready to ignite from the first spark that lights upon it. The roof, too, being much more exposed than any other part of the house, not only from the chimney sparks but from flakes of fire from adjoining burning buildings the utmost precaution was necessary. We advised him without fail to go at once to Mr Blake, the patentee of this invaluable paint 84 Pearl street, and we are pleased to say that he took our advice. We give the same advice to all who have shingle roof for they will obtain it genuine there and it is necessary to be particular, for so valuable a preparation as of course imitated, and there is any quantity of worthless stuff in the market.

The material from which the paint is manufactured is found in the earth, in a portion of the State of Ohio and we have seen a statement signed by a large number of persons in the vicinity of the mines, that there has been a total failure of all the other kinds of stuff made there and called Fire Proof Paint, and that Blake's alone is considered worth using.

This paint is for sale in Bangor. See advertisements.

Shocking Tragedy.

POUGHKEEPSIE, June 13th.

On Wednesday night a Mr Freeman P Gilead shot his wife while lying in bed he then ran out into a field and shot himself, and afterwards cut his throat as I died. Jealousy supposed cause of this dreadful tragedy.

John Hurley, an Irishman was instantly killed yesterday by the caving in of a portion of the canal bank along the canal at Lewiston. Another workman had several ribs broken and two or three others were more or less injured.—[Tr. to Mercury.

☞ The Lowell Journal states that the agent of one of the corporations in that city, has offered to furnish a handsome dinner for all the girls employed in the same, who, on or be ore that approaching fourth of July shall adopt the Bloomer costume. This is a good movement. Several of the girls in the mills have already adopted it, and it is regarded as not only a very becoming, but an extremely convenient and useful dress for them.

To Guitar.

BY H. L. B.

"Give me the power to touch like thee
The harp a melodious strings
To waken in the human heart
A love for holier things,
And I will lay aside my pen
With all the joy it brings
No more I'll rack my weary brain
To write the live long night,
Scatter during once to raise my eyes
To greet the moonbeams bright—
Lest jealous of the moon's soft rays,
My muse withdraw her aid,
And leave my half-completed lays
To wither droop and fade
I'll lay aside my cherished dream,
My daily prayer for fame,
Which after all, I'm often told,
Is but an empty name—
A name—a bubble light as air,
Which dazzles for a day,
But melts beneath the world's cold stare
And firmly fades away.
My cherished dream, my thirst for fame
I'll cheerfully resign
To touch like thee, the harp's sweet chords,
Or sing one song of thine
Then I will leave my half writ page,
When moonbeams gently shine,
And hasten with my harp and voice
To weave a strain divine,
Which will, perhaps, some sleeper's dream
With poesy inspire,
Who if touch with greater skill than mine
The poet's wondrous lyre."

This is a Great Natural Remedy for Indigestion and Dyspepsia curing after Nature's own Method by Nature's own Agent the Gastric Juice. PEPSIN is a liquid extract or Great Digestive Principle of the Gastric Juice—the Solvent of the Food, the Purifying Preservative and Stimulating Agent of the Stomach and Intestines. It is extracted from the Digestive Stomach of the Ox, the form and manner NATURE CHARGES DIGESTIVE FLUID, precisely like the Natural Gastric Juice, in the healthy powers of a healthy Stomach. It is perfectly adapted to the weakest Stomach. By the aid of this Fluid the poor dyspeptic invalids, who are so ill, get well and healthy and strong, and are as well as they would be if all healthy Stomach. Half a teaspoonful of this Pepsin Fluid, mixed with two tablespoonfuls of water, will dissolve Five Pounds of Beef, out of the stomach.

ELEGANT AND INVALUABLE Articles for the Toilet

Bogle's Hyperion Fluid

For Restoring Preserving and Embellishing the HAIR

The following Certificate from Dr Wm Jas Lewis of Boston is the best that can be given which shows the Hair Dressing one only of many similar testimonials.

Hyperion, Feb 15 1847

Mr Wm Bogle—Sir: The preparation invented by you for the Hair has been extensively used by my family and they find it the best article of the kind. It not only stiffens the hair and cleanses the skin, but imparts a healthy and glossy appearance and is a perfume for the hair unequalled. Recommend it to my friends as the best of many well known preparations.

WM WINSLOW LEWIS

It can be procured of the Inventor, No 50 Cornhill Boston, and of Druggists generally.

BOGLE'S AMOLE,

A COMPOUND FOR SHAVING.

This English Article is totally different from the Lather ordinarily used for shaving. Chemical in its nature, it is called Amole, or a soap plant of Chili, where it is used by the natives of that country for washing, and thus the use of strong alkali and tallow is rendered unnecessary. Its vegetable and intelligent properties have the greatest and most beneficial effect upon the skin—it soothes and allays irritation, and leaves the skin in a healthy condition, not requiring the use of any other article to be applied after shaving.

Prepared only by the Inventor, and sold by Druggists generally.

Bogle's Hebeatona,

FOR REFRESHING AND BEAUTIFYING THE COMPLEXION.

Indicating Tan, Pimples and other impurities of the skin, and rendering it fair, delicate and blooming. It is equally the best and most proper article for the skin to be used in the cold and freezing blasts of winter, and is the most formal and delicious article to be found at the toilet of fashion.

All the above articles have stood the test of the strictest investigation, and are warranted superior to anything yet invented, but if not found to prove so on trial the money in each case will be refunded by the Agent.

THE PILLS,

A CURE FOR THE SECURED

DR CURABLE INTERNAL REMEDY FOR THE CURE OF ILLS

THE VEGETABLE LIVER REGULATOR invented by Dr A U Upham and designed by physicians and New York City is the only really successful remedy to that dangerous and distressing complaint the Liver offered to the American public.

The Undersigned claims no Miracles, Wonderful cures or Extraordinary Powers for this compound, but simply states that it is a powerful and reliable purgative Medicine of long and well tested influence, and that in all cases where according to directions it is found to be a sure and effectual remedy.

Another certificate adds to the evidence that have already been received. Five efficacy of Dr Upham's Liver Regulator.

New York August 25 1849

Messrs Wyatt & Fitchum—Gents. For several years past I have been troubled with a very costive state of the bowels, long on and weakness of the system. Recently complaints not being so severe as to disable me from business, and a dread of the use of purgatives induced me to try this Spring Regulator, and to the great satisfaction of myself and friends, the pills being the only remedy that I have used which have not failed to be perfectly effective. I remain yours very much indebted friend

The writer of the above from motives of delicacy, decline having his name used but authorises us to refer to him. I show the original certificate to those who may doubt its authenticity.

Also perfectly reliable to the efficacy of Dr Upham's Regulator.

DANIEL SEYMOUR Sept 9 1846

Dr Upham—Dear Sir. About five years ago I was afflicted with what was called Chronic Dysentery. I have suffered with it ever since and physicians have told me that my liver was affected and that my bowels were ulcerated for blood and pus attended with a peculiar putrid smell were the frequent discharges. A short time since I made a visit to Massachusetts, in hopes of benefit from a change of air but suffered more severely than ever before. Within three months I tried every other remedy without effect. Finally I tried your Regulator and found to my great surprise and joy that it was just what my system needed. I have taken three boxes and am now in good health. I have recommended your Regulator to many persons who have used it with the most marked and decided benefit.

Respectfully yours, BENJAMIN PERCIVAL

THE GENUINE BALM OF COLUMBIA.

IF you wish a rich luxuriant head of hair free from dandruff or lack of it or to prevent its growth use the genuine Balm of Columbia. In cases of baldness it will more than exceed expectation. Many who have lost their hair for twenty years, have had it restored to its original position by the use of this balm. Age stole on and it disappeared to be no change will yet be seen as the child to flow with which has dotted hair thus is filled by which moustaches and whiskers have been gray as the Artist have not have had their hair restored to its natural color. It is invaluable in cases of fever to which it found the only remedy that can be used. A few applications only are necessary to keep the hair from falling out. It strengthens the roots of the hair, leaving it a rich glossy appearance and as a perfume for the toilet it is unequalled.
